HYPNOTISM AS A SCIENCE

It Is Pursued and Practiced by a Number of Investigators of Indianapolis.

C. C. Deitch. Who Is Semething of an Expert, Gives His Views of the Danger of Making Experiments-Post-Hypnotic Suggestions.

People in general have little idea to what au extent hypnotism is practiced in indianapolis. It would be strange if a city so thoroughly permeated with circles framed for the purpose of pursuing various intellectual fads and cults as is the Hooster hub would not find within itself many people anxious to investigate this mysterious psychic relation and its phenomena. There are in the city no less than a dozen little coteries whose members occupy not a little of their leisure time in the study of bypnotism, and several of them have developed into expert and scientific hypnotists. One of the most advanced of these is Mr. C. C. Dertch, or "Bud," as he is known among a large-circle of intimates. A few days ago the Journal sought an interview with him on the subject, but he preferred to put his following: "The majority of people believe that anyone capable of hypnotizing another to be endowed with a supernatural power and only those persons possessing the 'gift' can exercise the power of hypnotism. All such thoughts are erroneous. The science of by photizing ordinary subjects is so simple that it seems absurd to talk of teaching it to a person of ordinary intelligence; to see it done a few times is to be able to do it oneself. But because one is able to put another to sleep, it does not necessarily follow that the person operating has mastered the science of hypnotism, for the putting to sleep of a person is only the a b c of the science. Bringing the person out of the sleep again in as good condition or better than when he was put under the influence is where the true science of hypnotism begins. It ought to be understood that hypnotism recklessly played with is capable of doing very serious mischief. It is the duty of the scientific investigator of the phenomena to warn the public of the serious risks which are being run. In writing this article I will not attempt to give my own personal observations, but will attempt to show what the most learned practioners of the science say upon the

"I am convinced that hypnotism is an agent requiring careful bandling in many cases. This was brought home to a medscal friend in this city whose experience is worth recording. He was attending a lady asthma and a weak and fatty heart. He thought to quiet her spasmodic attacks by suggestion, and he induced a state of profound hypnosis with great facility. He continued to suggest easier and quieter breathing, and was pleased to see how the patient responded, and how respiration became more and more tranquil. He had not hypnotized many people, and looked upon the process as being quite unattended with risk, until the breathing, having become more and more feeble, suddenly stopped altogether and the heart beat became imperceptible. My friend feared the patient would have died-the first victim of hypnotic suggestion-and was intensely relieved when the spasmodic breathing was again heard.

"The real dangers are the increased tendency to hypnosis and heightened susceptibility to suggestion in the waking state, i. e., the possibility of a new hypnosis against the subject's will, perhaps without his suspecting it, and the danger of his accepting external suggestion in the waking state-suggestions even without hypnosis. It is this too great susceptibility to hypnosis which shows us how careful we should be in employing some of the modes of producing a hypnosis. For instance, the flashlight, revolving mirrors and the Braid system of hypnotizing by looking steadily at some bright object, which is the frequent cause of this, for accidentally fixing the eyes on some bright object may cause a sudden hypnosis, simply because the idea of a earlier hypnosis is thereby vividly recalled. "One of the great dangers of hypnotism is post hypnotic suggestions, that is, the carrying out in the future of any suggestion whatsoever the operator may make. We have a case of this kind which happened in Los Angeles, Cal. A hypnotizer named Mirvor Tyndall hypnotized a young man named Frank Steiner, a bookkeeper. Tyndall, after placing Steiner under the bypnotic influence, put a lead pencil in his hand and told him he was 'Jack the Ripper.' He then directed him to a woman in the audience whom he told him to stab. Steiner did as he was bid and continued the harmless stabbing process until stopped by Tyndall, who then told him that he had killed the woman and asked him if he was not sorry. The young man said he was and shed tears copionsly. Then Tyndall gave him a post hypnotic suggestion to be carried out the next morning, at the police station, confess his guilt to the chief of police and tell him he was 'Jack the Ripper.' The young man passed the night in his usual state of sleep and arose as if nothing had happened, He went to his work without displaying any signs of hypnotic infinence. As the hour approached, however, he exhibited a high state of nervousness and was by his physician advised to combat the influence and go to the country for a day or two. A few minutes before 11 o'clock the young man in a pitiful state of nervous excitement sized a knife and started for the police station. Arriving there, he danced about, flourishing his knife, and declared he was 'Jack the Ripper' and had come to confess that he had murdered a woman the night before. He was shaking violently. his face was bloodless and eyes wild. Several men seized him but could not hold him, he called wildly for the chief and when that officer made his appearance he in a tragic manner narrated what he had done and stated he had come to give himself up. An effort was made to get the knife from him by force but though there was a severe struggle it was not successful. Tyndail was sent for and a few raps on the head by him put the young man in an hyppotic sleep. When brought to the young man was completely prostrated and had to be taken to a hospital and placed under a physician's care. "Such cases as the above are not rare, but are of frequent occurrence. There was a similar one in Cinemuati a couple of years ago. When a young lady was hypnoptized by an acquaintance a post hypnotic suggestion was made which was to be carried out the next day. She was to take the identity of her brother, who was a bookkeeper. The next morning she put on a suit of her brother's clothes, and repaired to his place of business to assume his duties as bookkeeper. She created quite a sensation, both by her attire and peculiar actions, until it was discovered that she was under a hypnotic influence. She was taken home, several physicians called in, and with the best medical attention it was several days before she resumed her normal

Pastor's Grievous Error-Letters from the Jail -New Way of Cleaning Up a Small Boy-Musical Kittens.

The lot of a pastor is not entirely a happy one, as the shepherd of a certain Northside flock can testify. In his church is a member of advanced years whose activity of interest in pions undertakings, together with his liberal contributions, cause him to be regarded as a pillar. The pillar, unideas upon paper himself and prepared the fortunately, is not entirely withont flaws. He has a brother towards whom, for some unknown reason, he cheerishes unfriendly feelings, and with whom he has not exchanged a word for many years. The brother fell ill recently and came to the point of death. The pastor felt it his duty to bring about a reconciliation, if possible. It was not a pleasant task, but he approached the delicate subject courageously, and was just getting launched into a homily on the Christian obligation to be charitable and forgiving when the pillar interrupted him. "Look here, Mr. -," said he, "I give a lot of money to the church to pay your salary and one thing and another, but I pay for you to preach and attend to church business and not for interference in my family affairs. I can look after them myself. Good day." The pastor went his way, reflecting sadly that even if he had been paid for preaching, the sermons did not seem to have had much moral effect on at least one hearer. -t-

Now and then a prisoner in the county jail writes a letter to a friend or relative, which is unusually pertinent in its character. The turnkey at the prison invariably reads these missives before they are sent out and occasionally falls upon something suffering from bronchitis, complicated with indited by a miserable inmate worth repeating. Jennie Carr, the young colored woman arrested the other day for the alleged murder of her infant child, was taken with a spirit of exceeding penitence last Thursday and scribbled a letter of four pages to her sister, who is a resident of another city . The girl, in her illiterate way, pours out a heartful of sorrow, not on account of her condition, but because her infant was poisoned. She quotes much Scripture and says that since the death of her babe she has been converted, and proposes to lead a better life if she is acquitted of the charge of murder. Jennie's letter was of the serious nature, but the other day Jerre Collins, the turnkey, was handed one from a prisoner, a hardened young fellow, who had just received a sentence to the workhouse. "Jim," as he was called, possessed a young wife and child, the babe, it seems, having not yet been given a name when the father was sent up. One day during Jim's incar-ceration, while waiting a trial, his wife had written to him announcing that the infant was old enough to be christened, and, she added, that she bad decided to call it James, after its papa. The fond father appeared highly elated over the mother's choice, and the next day was sent before the court to be tried for his misdemeanor. The judge gave him ninety days on the "works," and Jim was taken back to jail. Hurriedly he called for paper and ink, and rapidly scratched off a few lines, which, before being mailed, fell under the notice of Turnkey Colline, They were brief, but philosophically to the point, and read: "Don't call the baby James; the name is a dead Joner."

There is a charming young lady teacher in one of the city schools who is just now pouring out a wealth of the tenderest affection upon a pair of rollicking young kittens, and she allows no opportunity to pass without extolling the virtues of these delightful felines to her friends. That these cats possess remarkable talent is evident from the fact that the young lady has christened them, respectively, Alto and Soprano. Both are beautiful, dappled darlings and both partake of a musical quality that is truly wonderful to those 'even o'clock.' The suggestion was at | who have been fortunate enough to attend a 11 o'clock. The next day he should go to musicale in which Alto and Soprano predominate. The mistress of the prodi gies is quite fond of the piano, and it is her custom to instruct the pets a half hour each evening in simple exercises. She seats herself at the instrument, with the cats on either side, and, deftly touching the keys with her shapely tingers, goes on with the lesson. The kittens are all ears, and soon the members of the family who are not permitted to enjoy these events are edified by a wave of melody that is most startling. The concert continues until the entire gamut is run, and then the furry artists are encored by the vivacious tutor. At times the notes emanating from the pink throats of Alto and Soprano are somewhat out of touch with harmony, but the neighbors are humane and a riot is averted.

> He is a very little fellow and is somewhat given to mischief. One day his mother left him alone with a fond and doting maiden aunt, who thought she would dress him up and go to a neighbor's to show off. He is something of a meddler; is inclined to want to know what is on the table, to which his head just about reaches. In some way or another, just as his aunt was about to start with him, he was missing, and she went to find him. having received no answer to her call. What a sight met her eye as she entered the kitchen! That boy had pulled a bowl of gravy over on his head, and the greasy stuff was smeared all over his clean dress. There he stood, too frightened to cry, and knowing not what to expect from his aunt. Her woman's fertility of expedient here stood her in good stead. Calling Trix, her large and faithful mountain shepherd dog, she bade him lick off that gravy. This was quite to his taste, and when he was through there was not a particle of grease on the boy, and no damage was done, except the need of a new dress. Trix walked off licking his chops as though he would not care if such accidents happened every day.

Said the drummer who sells drugs: "I was sitting behind one of my customers who was in a poker game in certain town that shall be namesave that it is situated in Indiana. Presently he 'skinned' his hand with the result of showing up four queens and an ace. When the draw came he stood pat, and the result was that no one bet against him. I asked him afterward why he did not draw one card, and give the imguess you don't know that gang,' said he. If I had a' let that there ace get on to the table somebody would have had four aces

PREPARING FOR THE FAIR

Executive Board Apportions the Money in Its Hands for the Fair Exhibits.

Meagre Sums Set Apart for the Committees-Disposition Shown to Make Money Go as Far as Possible to Save State's Credit.

The executive board of the Indiana world's fair commission was in session all day yesterday, and did some excellent work, which will expedite the preparations for the opening of the fair, now only a little more than a month distant. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, chairman of the woman's committee, submitted a report of the progress of the work in this department. She said the women of Indiana desire more recognition at the inauguration of the fair than was given them during the Columbian week. The committee recommended that Miss Williams, in charge of the art department, be appointed hostess of the Indiana building, and that the members of the woman's committee alternate in assisting

The board authorized Messrs. Havens and Campbell to go to Bedford to-morrow and urge the immediate shipment of the stone exhibit. The employment of a stenographer in the State building was authorized. The building was reported finished, except the doors, which the firm donating them has been slow in furnishing, evidently thinking the urgency small enterprise like Columbian exposition could not be pleaded against the dilatory convenience of large donors like themselves. The firm does business in Terre Haute. The board listened to an appeal from Sidney Conger, of the committee on live stock, for an appropriation of $10,000, so the State may make a proper exhibit. The amount set apart for this purpose was, however, only $3,000. The committee on furnishing and decorating the State building was instructed to complete its work at once. With the sum set apart for its use the building will be furnished very plainly, being only $4,800. The paint ing contract was let to Fred Mack & Co. at $1,700. Jungelaus & Schumacher received the contract to make the agricultural exhibit pavilion at $2,415, and Mr. K. Fatout was given the contract for the three pavilions for the mines and mining, forestry and educational exhibits at $3,180.

The committee on printing was authorized to have the monographs thus far ordered printed at a cost not exceeding $1,000. Various small contracts for boxes, casing, etc., were authorized to be made. Warrants on the State treasury were authorized to be drawn for $25,000, to be paid in five-thousand-dollar amounts. Taking up the important and difficult matter of the apportionment of the appro-priation of $50,000 the board set aside to

This leaves a balance of $2,000, which with the $5,000 reserve fund, will leave a $7,000 margin for unlooked for expenses, and to pay for returning the exhibits to the State. The expenses of Executive Commissioner Havens were limited to $3 per day. He will live in the State building, and will be expected to remain almost constantly at his post of duty. The board authorized the employment of nine attaches of the building in various capacities. It will next meet at the building in Chicago. The art committee appointed by the board to pass upon the works submitted, with a view to exhibition at the fair, made its selection yesterday. The committee consisted of Miss Meb Culbertson of Richmond, Mrs. Francis M. Haberly of Terre Hante, Miss Lyetel of Lafayette, and Miss Robinson, Messrs. T. C. Steele and William Forsythe. of this city. There were about forty pictures china pieces under inspection. Only two of the oil paintings were accepted, these being a November beach landscape by Mrs. M. B. Williams, of this city, and a section of a French art salon, by Miss Retta Matthews. Two works in black and white, by Miss O. Rusk, of Fairmount, and several pieces of decorated chins, by Miss Eva L. Clark, of South Bend, and one piece, by Mrs. John Julian, of this city, were accepted.

BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG.

Celebrated Cycloramic Painting of this Famous Battle Opened Yesterday.

A number of representatives of the press. of the clergy and city government were permitted, by the courtesy of the management, to witness the opening exhibition of Philippoteaux' famous battle of "Gettysburg," at the Cyclorama building, on Market street, yesterday. The battle ground is represented as it appeared on the third day of the fight, at the beginning of Pickett's charge. The "Battle of Gett"sburg" is doubtless the most famous of the many cycloramic representations of historic scenes of the late war. The arrangement of the troops upon the field was done under supervision of a committee of members of the Grand Army of the Republic and others who participated in the fight. The perspective, being obtained by a series of photographs from the spot on which the spectator is supposed to stand, is, necesearily, perfect, while the blending of the foreground of the picture with a bit of real ground, which constitutes the center of the scene, is so skillfully done that there is considerable difficulty in telling where reality ends and representation begins. The exhibition will remain in Indianapo lis for an indefinite period, being open from 9 A. M. to lo P. M. each day, with the exception of Sundays, when the doors will be open from 2 to 10 P. M.

TRAMPING LADS.

Fugitives from Home, They Are Seeing the World in a Rough Way.

ANOTHER CORONER'S INQUEST.

Young Man in Brightwood Dies of Septicæmia from an Accident.

At 6 o'clock last night Coroner Beck was summoned to Brightwood to view the remains of J. A. McKenna, aged twenty-twe years, who died at his home on Gail street at 6 o'clock Thursday evening. The cause of his death is supposed to be due to septio poisoning from a wound. McKenna was employed at the Big Four shops at Brightwood, and on last Saturday caught his hand in a "plane," badly injuring the member. Dr. Coombs, the railroad's physician, was called in and saw the patient at noon Thursday, finding him in a precarious condition. Dr. Johnson, of Brightwood, the regular physician of the McKenna family, had charge of the case, but notwithstanding his efforts, death occurred very suddenly Thursday evening. McKenna was un-married and resided with his parents. The coroner will investigate the death at the request of the young man's family.

MAY WHEAT IS STRONGER

Caused by a General Clamor to Buy that Month While Selling July.

Any Considerable Buying Order for the May Future Invariably Starts a Rush to Cover and the Prices Begin to Run Up.

TRADING AT CHICAGO. Provisions Were Firmer on Light Hog Re

ceipts, with Little Doing. CHICAGO, March 25.-Wheat to-day was strong for May, and barely steady for July. While the former closed 1c higher than on the day before, July closed isc lower. The number of buying orders for May and selling for July was the great feature of the day's business. Corn had a sharp break, and at the close showed a loss of the in the May delivery and to in July. Provisions were firmer on light receipts of hogs. The feeling in wheat was rather nervous. For May delivery prices ruled higher, the opening being about the same as yesterday's closing, receded 4c, held steady and closed 4c lower than yesterday. The July delivery sold at 4@512c discount, as compared with May prices. The reason assigned for the action of the market was the covering for May delivery and the selling for July. in which movement some of the operators in the Northwest were particularly interested. It was claimed that a number of buying orders were received for May delivery, and that there was very little wheat offered, and the filling of a buying order for 40,000 or 50,000 bushels would create % @ 'se rise in prices. Around 78c for May there was activity which checked the advance for the time being. Many dealers have stopped trading in the May future, and it is not so easy to execute the orders as it was a week or so ago. The receipts continued to keep up both in the Northwest and here, and there was about 50 per cent. of the local arrivals contract in grade, representing largely wheat coming from private warehouses. Export clearances were larger than they have been of late, while the receipts at primary markets were less. It is estimated that the visible supply will show a decrease of 250,000 to 500,000 bu. Crop advices continue somewhat mixed, and were not having much effect on the market. The pressure of cash stuff to make room for wheat constituted a chief element of weakness in corn, especially as shipping houses claimed they could not profitably place the grain even at a considerable rebate offered by elevator concerns. With the cash situation unfavorable for holders few traders were friendly enough to buy for investment and the demand was chiefly from the shorts. At one time there was something of a selling effort on the part of operators from the wheat pit, and this, coupled with the unloading of "long" stuff carried the price down & @4c before there was an effectual check. The close was within 4c of the bottom. There was a liberal trade in oats and lower range of prices, due to increased offerings and also to sympathy with corn. There was no especial support except from scattering shorts and prices after opening about the same as yesterday declined 40 %c, rallied slightly and finally closed easy with a net loss of bc.

Trade in provisions was very light. After the first half hour of the session there was scarcely anything doing. Some strength was developed at the opening on a few outside buying orders coming in and several prominent commission houses taking the offerings, which were limited. The advance was moderate, and a firm feeling prevailed, with the tendency upwards, the market gaining all around. There was some covering by the shorts toward the close. Final prices, compared with last night, were 1212 up for pork, .10c for lard and .05c for ribs.

Estimated receipts for Monday are: Wheat, 180 cars; corn, 160 cars; oats, 150 cars: hogs, 16,000. The leading futures ranged as follows:

LCCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

The Trade of the Week Disappointing with few Changes of Importance. In most lines the trade of the week closing March 25 was disappointing, there being too much rain and cool weather for spring trade. In prices changes were few and unimportant. Sugars are 40 higher than a week ago, but other staple groceries are the same. Shippers Saturday dropped eggs to 12c and they are weak at that quotation. Poultry rules steady, apples are lower; but little good fruit is on the market. All vegetables are easier. Dry good are steady and firm in all lines with the advance. Everything in the contectionery line is firmer. Provisions are unchanged but carry an easier tone. The local grain market has been more active the last week, but Saturday prices broke badly, nearly all grades of corn going off 12 cent, and some grads of oats cent.
